

REVOLT OF BAVARIA IS CRUSHED

LOYAL TROOPS QUELL LUDENDORFF UPRISING

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

The nationalist putsch in Munich, capital of Bavaria, by General Ludendorff and Adolph Hitler, has been suppressed and Von Poehner, named premier by the revolutionists, is under arrest, according to advices received through various trustworthy channels.

Ludendorff and Hitler, who last night proclaimed themselves respectively military dictator and chancellor of all Germany, are reported to be barricaded in the war ministry building in Munich, which is surrounded by troops loyal to the government.

Advices from Berlin and other centers show that Dr. Von Kahr, Bavarian dictator under the Von Kneiling regime, and the Reichswehr commander, Von Lussow, ranged themselves against the Ludendorff-Hitler organization and that the coup was confined almost wholly to the Munich brew house in which it was staged.

The intense activity in Berlin which followed the first news of the outbreak has died down, according to direct dispatches from the capital, and the situation at mid-forenoon was such that the police guards were withdrawn from the government buildings.

Authoritative information from Munich is scarce, direct telegraph communication having been suspended, railway traffic stopped, and an edict issued by War Minister Gessler forbidding publication of other than official reports regarding events in Bavaria.

The French government, which yesterday gave official warning in Berlin that it would not tolerate establishment of a nationalist military dictatorship, is watching developments closely, and Premier Poincare this morning was in conference with his war minister, while the inter-allied council of ambassadors, representing all the allied powers, has been summoned to meet at 5 p. m. to consider the situation.

The revolt had a depressing effect on foreign exchanges in the New York market, new low records for the year being established by demand sterling, Spanish pesetas, Norwegian and Danish kronen and Dutch guilders. French and Belgian francs also declined sharply.

BULLETIN

Berlin.—General Ludendorff and Adolph Hitler, leaders of the Bavarian revolt, have been captured by federal troops.

ARREST OF MUTINEERS.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Berlin.—The latest advice indicates that the Bavarian dictator, Von Kahr, and the Reichswehr commander, Von Lussow, are not identified with the Ludendorff-Hitler putsch and have ordered the arrest of these two leaders.

The coup appears to be wholly confined to the Munich brew house in which it was staged, and the federal troops are reported not to be participating in the uprising.

Berlin is quiet and the police protection also being withdrawn from the government buildings.

MUNICH OUTBREAK QUELLED.
[LEADER OF COUP ARRESTED]

Berlin.—The outbreak in Munich has been suppressed and the leaders of the movement, who had been appointed one of the governors of Bavaria, have been arrested.

General Ludendorff and Adolph Hitler have barricaded themselves in the ministry of war. All the other mutineers, held by the regular Bavarian government under Premier Von Kneiling.

The campaign of terror, which had been started by the regular Bavarian government under Premier Von Kneiling, was suspended.

Judge E. B. Beiden, of the Racine county circuit court, presented the memorial. A letter from Mr. Harris in whose honor the tablet was dedicated, was read, expressing deep interest in Racine, his native city, and regretting his inability to be present.

ANNUAL CRY OF BUTCHERS HEARD-- "TURKEYS HIGHER"

These are the days that housewives are quizzing their butchers on the prospects for the Thanksgiving turkey crop, and whatever the price quoted by the butcher may be the wives are sure to say "Why that's higher than last year--too much money!"

One dealer stated, Thursday, he believed turkeys would be nearly 10 cents higher per pound than they were last year. He is not lining up the flocks in the nearby countryside, but believes that the Chicago market will have to furnish the bulk of the Thanksgiving turkeys.

Another dealer, more hopeful than that he would obtain a good price from out of the state, he quoted 20 to 25 cents per pound, as the general price for the fowl.

According to the Chicago market standards, and allowing for the heavy buying around holiday time, he quoted the following prices on fowls:

Chickens, 20 to 25 cents per pound, ducks, 25 to 30 cents per pound, and geese, 25 to 25 cents per pound.

One housewife, who had the impression that turkeys this year would be just "bit chump" because she had read somewhere that hundreds of the birds were to be shipped in from South America.

"Cold storage fowls" was the laconic retort from the butcher when she told him about it.

Paris.—The fact that the French ambassador to the United States, M. The chances of the committee being organized consequently are regarded as slight.

BIBLE READING ON INCREASE YEARLY

Translations of Gospel Are Printed in More Than 700 Languages.

London—People are reading the Bible today more than ever before, says the Daily Telegraph, which quotes figures of the British and Foreign Bible Society to support its assertion.

There was an increase in the number of Bibles published in the English and Welsh languages during the war, followed by a decrease after the close of hostilities. This year 1922 again showed an increase, however, which points to a "revival of the reading of the home book."

Significant of the worldwide influence of the Bible is their figures in all languages for the past century and a quarter. The figures are summaries of totals at intervals of 25 years, and include Bibles, Testaments, and portions of the Scriptures.

village, when the feudal system abhorred the very idea of a masterless man on the roads. It is true that we do not whip the tramp, masculine or feminine, from one parish to another, but we proceed to do this in the quiet, false assumption that there is a place of work for everyone and that anyone tramping the roads is a bad citizen.

REIS IS APPOINTED HEAD OF COMMITTEE

Reis, assistant state attorney general and counsel for the state department of markets, has been appointed by the National Association of State Marketing officials an chairman of the committee on co-operative organization. PREPARES ATLANTIC FLIGHT.

Copenhagen—Lieutenant Grumman of the United States Air service has left here for Greenland to investigate the possibility of using the Danish Crown Land as the stage for the eventual American military seaplane attempt to cross the Atlantic summer, from New York to England. It is planned to use both Greenland, Iceland and the Faroe Islands as stopping off places, if necessary. Lieutenant Grumman also will visit Iceland and the Faroe Islands.

We assume, also, that what was often true of old, that the tramp is a dangerous man, who is a menace to the community. Many tramps are on the road because they cannot get work at home. Many others are who have worked hard and will work hard again if opportunity offers, but have in their blood some streak of wildness which demands every now and then the free life of the open road.

Most of the genuine old railway navvies had this野性. They would work hard, then when quite suddenly, the wander fever would come upon them; they would take their money and walk half across England before looking about for more work. Some would attach themselves to special firms of contractors and would work from one to another, not necessarily because they lacked the money to travel by rail, but because they loved the tramping life. The tramp is blood brother to those old adventurers who built an empire for England; to those restless modern soldiers of fortune, who may find themselves wherever trouble is. We might remember that Kingfish in dealing with the tramp.—Manchester Guardian.

PRISONERS' ROW HAS FULL HOUSE

Two in Court for Non-Support
One on Statutory Charge.

Prisoners' Row in municipal court had a full house Friday with a half dozen defendants occupying the semi-circle of chairs before the judge and their attorneys.

Robert Sutton, charged with non-support, and his wife and two children, had his trial adjourned to Nov. 16 after District Attorney S. G. Dunwiddie had informed the court that Sutton's attorney, W. H. Arnold, Deloit, had requested a week's delay.

William Ahrbeck, charged with non-support and desertion of his wife, Elizabeth, at Fulton, on July 16, asked for an examination, which was set for 9 a. m. yesterday, with ball at 11 a. m., which was granted. George Gofka appears for him.

Brought back from Chicago through extradition papers obtained by Janesville police, N. L. Tonlinson appeared in court on a statutory charge in which John Van Antwerp, Janesville, is the complainant. What he wants is that Tonlinson and Van Antwerp's wife, Chloe Van Antwerp, committed a statutory offense in Janesville, Dec. 27, 1921. Tonlinson has been sought by the police for a year.

"I am glad to get back to Janesville to set this thing straightened out," declared Tonlinson. "I am not guilty of the charge and believe I can prove it."

Tonlinson was placed under $1,000 bail, with his hearing set for Saturday morning.

The Revolt Is Staged.

The expected has happened in Bavaria. There has been no time in three months when the coup,
the monarchial dictatorship and the determination to separate Bavaria from Germany has not been impeded. Ludendorff, Hitler and Von Kahr are all leaders of more than the ability displayed by the German government, so fully dominated by Stinnes and the other pretenders.

How far it will go is a matter of time to determine.
It may be that Bavaria will be allowed to go as a separate state. If so it may indicate the final breaking up of the German nation into its separate sections and in that way cheat the cities out of any reparations.

We have had so many crises in Germany in the last five years that one need not get unduly excited over another until something actually happens.

Make up your mind to be one who will help
pack the high school auditorium Sunday night when we are remembering Armistice day and the service men.

Shall They Share in Prosperity?

The news printed in the Gazette Thursday, of the prosperity of the railroads is welcome to all of us. We are deeply interested in the largest possible activity of the rail lines. When the rail roads are hauling long strings of freight cars it means that several thousand people are working all the time, and perhaps overtime, to meet the demand of trade and commerce. We could not get along without railroads. They are to the greatest measure the barometer of business.
They are hauling large quantities of farm products to the seaboard or transporting grain to mills and elevators north, east and south. Every business appears to be receiving its need of prosperity reflected in the unprecedented railroad freight loadings—except and save one—farming.

There have been a hundred reasons advanced as to why this is so. No one really seems to have hit the answer to the question completely. That it was the tariff has been long since discredited
by the halting at the border of the immense Canadian crop of wheat. That it was the trouble in Europe and the German reparations is perhaps only one bite of the cherry. That it is speculation is belied by the wheat market's ups and downs on reliable supply reports. That it is over-production, has some merit; and that it is caused by a failure to have a marketing system whereby grain need not be placed on sale as it comes from the thresher but may be held for distribution as needed, is by far the most convincing. Yet there is another factor of importance in the farmer's situation which has been discussed in these columns a number of times—freight rates on farm products. That these are higher in consideration of price received than on other products is not denied. The percentage is to the disadvantage of the farmer. The amount on each bushel is small but the aggregate on $100,000,000 bushels is enormous. We believe the freight rates are too high for the farmer on the farmer's produce. His grain is selling back at the 1913 price and his purchases are at the 1913 and 1919 prices
or more. This is unfair and unjust.

In the general prosperity of the railroads there should be more than the mere idea that "We can get it" by the railroads when it comes to freight rates on farm products. Always in rates more distance haulage is not a luxury. There are other considerations which have resulted in the division of freights into classes. A bushel of wheat, for which there is received three dollars can well afford to pay more than the bushel for which the farmer is receiving less than a dollar.
Freight rates are one element in the loss to the grain grower when he comes to make a recapitulation of expense of marketing his wheat.

It may be the railroads will continue to refuse to see the matter in this light. They are constantly appealing to the public for additional support and express hope that the people do not pay attention to demagogues and attack for political purpose, but it is also true that apparently no effort is being made to minimize that criticism or invite a new feeling of confidence in the railroads by the public or to silence the political attack.

It is high time the railroads take measure of the attitude of the farmer as he figures on costs
of production and marketing his products.

The Waning Steamship Thirst.

Then along comes the New York Times,
changing front in reference to liquor on ships
with another blow under the belt. The Times once felt that either the Declaration of Independence or the Jay treaty or some other sacred document was being trampled upon when we curtailed the liquor on American ships to the hip pocket artists and stopped the British. Commenting on the arrangement between Secretary Hughes and the British government in reference to seizure at the 12 mile limit and the permission for British ships to carry sealed liquor out of American ports to be used on voyages after the 12 miles had been passed, the Times says:

The use of intoxicants on steamships has greatly fallen off. The old steady soakers who never showed their liquor have disappeared. The younger enthusiasts from this country are not numerous; nor are they welcome guests of the

INSIDE DOPE ON HUNGER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

Washington.—Nearly 1,500 prisoners of the British State have recently given up their concerted hunger strike, which was to end only in death or freedom. This recalls memories of the famous hunger strikes of the British suffragettes, led by Mrs. Pankhurst, who repeatedly achieved freedom by this spectacular but unpleasant procedure; and the prolonged self-starvation of McSwiney, which actually ended in death. During the war, while our own suffragettes were picketing the White House and thus finding their way into jail and the newspaper headlines, they also dared hunger to do its worst until they should be freed from man-made bonds.

Through these widely heralded adventures, the attention of the public has been repeatedly attracted to hunger. But few of us have realized what a hunger strike is, and whether the vic-tions are to be pitied, or are merely enjoying an unusual experience.

The exact reason for hunger puzzled science for centuries. Theories and counter theories were advanced. While some experimenters held its origin to be in the stomach, others thought it was brought about by general conditions of the body and limbs. Still others believed that certain parts of the body were sensitive to exhaustion of bodily energy, and thereupon produced the particular cravings for food and drink.

Certain well-known cases, however, seemed to prove that depletion of the body could not cause hunger, since it starvation were continued long enough hunger disappeared. Viterbi, a Corsican lawyer condemned to death, made up his mind to lead the executioner through starvation. He had the necessary courage to carry out his resolution together with a scientific interest sufficient to induce him to keep careful notes of his sensations while starving to death. He lived for 18 days—a remarkably brief period to cause death
by starvation alone, as proved by later experiments, but probably due, in Viterbi's case, to his total abstinence from food or moisture of any kind.
On the third day hunger departed, never returning before death. On the other hand, the famous political adventurer, Baron von Trenck, wrote in his memoirs that he was tortured by agonizing hunger, without exception, for 11 months while confined in the citadel of Magde-burg. The difference between the experience of von Trenck and that of Viterbi was that the Baron was allowed a pound and a half of ammunition bread and a jug of water every day.

To explain this seeming contradiction of hunger being kept alive by eating, the Russian scientist
Paykov, began experimenting on small animals.
He found that when an animal was allowed to eat or smell attractive food, saliva flowed rapidly in its mouth, the digestive juices of the animal's stomach began to increase almost immediately, and the stomach to contract. Although no food was eaten, the animal gave every evidence of increased hunger.

Thus, for the first time, the experimenters began to believe that movements of the stomach might have something to do with hunger. It was known that Viterbi probably got rid of his hunger because his stomach became absolutely quiet after a few days, whereas, every time von Trenck ate or drank, his digestive organs were stimulated into greater activity.

It remained for Prof. Walter B. Cannon of Harvard Medical school, however, to prove conclusively what hunger consists of. One of Dr. Cannon's students, named Washburn, volunteered as a subject. He learned to swallow a little rubber balloon, with a long rubber tube leading into it, and to allow this balloon and tube to stay in his stomach several hours without causing him any annoyance. After the student was accustomed to his strange stomach contents, the balloon was blown up, by means of its attached tube, and the upper end of the tube was connected with a nozzle, which traced a line on a revolving smoked drum. Whenever the stomach contracted, it squeezed together the inflated balloon, air was forced up the balloon's tube, and the marker moved sharply up and down on the smoked drum.

Each time the student said he felt hungry, the marker began to move. Hunger was explained at last, as due to the squeezing together of the stomach, with the sensations of pressure and pain inevitably resulting from each contraction.

By means of this simple explanation, many hitherto puzzling facts are now understood. The suddenness with which hunger sometimes comes on has led woodsmen and hunters to invent the phrase "grub-attack." Before Cannon's discovery, no one could explain how a man could be comfortable one minute, and the next feel an irresistible longing for food. Now it is known that his stomach begins suddenly to contract, and, through experience, the hungry man seeks food.

Many doctors have reported cases of patients who felt hunger although their stomachs were full at the very moment they felt it. The explanation is that through some diseased condition of the nerves, the stomach may contract quite as violently when full as when empty.

The exact timing of an individual's periods of feeling hungry seems to depend, to a considerable extent, on habits of eating. Yet no matter how he is accustomed to eat, or when, somewhere in the body must lie a sort of alarm clock that sets
the stomach to contracting whenever the body needs more nourishment. The stomach has a net-work of nerves, called a "plexus" comparatively independent of all the other nerves. It was thought for many years that this nerve plexus timed periods of hunger automatically, like an hour glass, without any chance for the rest of the body to influence it. But if indigestible foods, or foods with less bulk than that is needed by the body, are eaten, the length of time between attacks of hunger varies according to the needs.

Prof. A. J. Carlson of the University of Chicago, A. J. Carlson, has recently undertaken to discover just how the body can send a message to the stomach when food is needed. Dr. Carlson and his students found that when they took some blood from a hungry dog and injected it into a dog that had just been fed, the satisfied animal immediately began to show signs of hunger.
Dr. Carlson concluded that, when the body needs food, it manufactures some sort of chemical substance which is circulated in the blood.
When this substance touches the stomach nerves,
or perhaps the walls of the stomach itself, contractions begin.

of themselves. There isn't much money in keeping a marine bar. People select their steambaths according to their taste and fancy; and the number of persons kept away from an American ship by its dearness is negligible. The loss to American marines to British steamships by the proposed permission would be unimportant. The real consideration which the British government seeks in the treaty is to remove from itself any suspicion of tenderness toward such of its subjects as are violating American laws.

It is evident from the English press that the English are disgusted with the imputation which ruin-trading British ships being upon their nation in American public opinion.

The bootlegger who hangs around one of the veteran hospitals in his effort to find customers should be dealt with without mercy. These buzzards have been too numerous near the Winona rehabilitation hospital. They used to be thick around the Soldiers Home in Milwaukee. Shooting is too nice a death for these vermin.

enberg. That would be worth the price of admission.

CERTAIN JOYS

I shall not fail in this,
Whatever the day may bring;
I'll smile to feel my baby's kiss
And hear the robins sing.

I'll joy to greet the morning sun,
And every garden rose,
And marvel as I look upon
My baby's little toes.

This heart of mine will leap
With joy, in spite of care,
To see my little babe asleep
Upon her pillow there.

I'll greet my friends with cheer,
Whoe'er those friends may be;
In spite of doubt or fear,
They'll still belong to me.

Oh, there is much in life
Beyond the moments sad,
Beyond the pain and strife,
To keep a mortal glad.

CHASING THE RAINBOW

It is true, a reader asks, that goitre is less prevalent in certain regions of the United States than it is in other regions. What is the reason? I can tell you that a goitrous individual now living in a region of marked prevalence of goitre will get rid of the goitre if he moves to a region where goitre is rare?

Simple goitre is much more common in certain regions of the United States than in other regions. The reason is, probably, that a goitrous individual now living in a region of marked prevalence of goitre will get rid of the goitre if he moves to a region where goitre is rare?

So the hope I had founded upon me dreamt and was consumed with fear. The glow was in other hands than Orphelia's. She was as ignorant now as ever of the existence of the key, concerning which I had, from time to time, imagined that she had had some special knowledge. I suppose I should have been thankful to see her thus removed from direct connection with what might happen. Perhaps I was. Certainly there was nothing more that could do for her or for any one, least of all for myself. I could but add one more to the many persons waiting, some in patience, some in judgment, for developments which would end all wild guessing and fix the island where it rightfully belonged.

But when it became a common thing for me to run upon Edgar at the tea-room in Forty-second Street, sometimes nothing but a stare, sometimes nothing but a smile, I began to think that his frequent appearance there had a meaning could safely associate with myself.

For under the obvious earnestness of the new structure of his thoughts I quickly checked impulse the moment—desire almost passionate to speak, held back by scorn or fear. What if I should need him! For the words from his lips which I always saw hovering there! It might precipitate matters. The man whom I had regarded as his friend would be gone. To be sure his place might have been taken by some one else whom I had not yet identified. But that must be risked. Accordingly, the next time Edgar showed himself at the restaurant, I followed him into his corner and knowing the startled figure by which I was met, sat down at a table by myself, with blunt questions which left him no opportunity for protest.

"Let us talk. We are both suffering. I cannot live this way nor can you. Let me have it out. If not here, then in some other place, with no anywhere you say. But first before we take a step you must understand that I am honest. Edgar, and my feelings for you are the sum from which you need not shrink: if you will be as honest with me."

He launched, but in a tone totally different from the merry peal which once brought a smile from lips now buried out of sight.

"Honest with you?" He muttered; but Rose as he said this and reached for the overcoat, to the astonishment of the waiter advancing to serve us.

Laying a coin on the table, I rose to my feet and in a few minutes we were both in the street, walking I knew not where for I was not so well acquainted with the city as he, and was quite willing to follow where he led.

Mounting we were silent, his breath coming quickly and mine for from equal. I was glad when we paused, but surprised that it was in the middle of a quiet block with a high boarded fence running half its length, in which he took his stand, as he said:

"Why go further? You have seen my misery and you want to talk. Talk about what? Our uncle's death? You know more about that than I do; and more about the will, too. I am ready to take my oath. And you want to talk? You..."

"We have been silent. You heard what I said at the innkeeper. I said but repeat every word of denial which I uttered then. You may find it hard to believe me or you may be just amusing yourself with me for some purpose which I find it hard to comprehend. I am willing it should be known if you will speak with me and say what you say. Laying a coin on the table, I rose to my feet and in a few minutes we were both in the street, walking I knew not where for I was not so well acquainted with the city as he, and was quite willing to follow where he led.

Mounting we were silent, his breath coming quickly and mine for from equal. I was glad when we paused, but surprised that it was in the middle of a quiet block with a high boarded fence running half its length, in which he took his stand, as he said:

"Why go further? You have seen my misery and you want to talk. Talk about what? Our uncle's death? You know more about that than I do; and more about the will, too. I am ready to take my oath. And you want to talk? You..."

"We have been silent. You heard what I said at the innkeeper. I said but repeat every word of denial which I uttered then. You may find it hard to believe me or you may be just amusing yourself with me for some purpose which I find it hard to comprehend. I am willing it should be known if you will speak with me and say what you say. For I am quite aware, however you may seem to hide it, that there is something you wish me to know; something that would clear the road between us; something which it would be better for you to speak and for me to hear. The first a interchange of incisive words which lead nowhere and bring small comfort."

ROSSEBO GUILTY ON TWO COUNTS

Start Work for Health Offices

Judge Maxfield Gives High Limit Sentence, $2,000 or One Year.

After one and one-quarter hours deliberation in the Old T. Rossebo liquor case in municipal court Thursday, a jury brought in a verdict of guilty on two counts of possession and not guilty on sale.

Arraigned before Judge H. L. Maxfield for sentence at 10 a. m., Rossebo was fined $1,000 and costs of six months on each of the two counts on which he was found guilty. This makes his total sentence $2,000 or one year in jail.

Defendant Takes Stand

After much damaging evidence introduced by the state during the morning session, in which part of the morning session the defense took the stand, Rossebo took the stand in his own defense just before the trial came to a close. Examined by his own counsel, P. J. E. Wood, the defendant told his story of innocence.

He said one of the cans of alcohol labeled "Denture" he had bought for painting purposes was on one of his shelves with many others. A second can of gin he said was purchased by the witness to have been purchased at John Hennings' saloon before the country went dry.

Rossebo could not explain the presence on his premises of two pint bottles partially filled with liquor, as he got them he could not tell as he did not know where to buy them until found by the police, he said.

In Cross-Examination

District Attorney S. G. Dunwiddie went after the defendant on cross-examination, subjecting him to an uncomfortable few minutes of questions.

The case was then submitted to the jury by the court without arguments. Judge Maxfield charged the jury explained that the trial should be given to the defense, and how he could be found guilty or not guilty of any of the three counts. The three counts were—possession on June 1, sale on Aug. 15, and possession on Sept. 11.

John Raboy, who is under the state board of control, testified that he and William Marsden, Jack Keating and Jim Raboy, acquired liquor at Rossebo's place the night they robbed the City Clothing company's warehouse on South Franklin street. Raymond Weeks, taxi driver, testified to having driven the quartet to Rossebo's place. Marsden, Keating and Jim Raboy are still at large.

After flourishing for many years as a roadside and lodging place, the brick hotel in South Janesville is now reported by officials to be absolutely vacant. Every piece of furniture has been moved out of the place and no one is in residence. Mr. and Mrs. Fred and Mrs. Herman Schallatz, former proprietors, have left and took with them three truckloads of furniture. It was reported the lunch counter was burned.

Localists say Roy Stoddard is still living in the frame building across the street from the hotel, pending his return to the city. He filed a petition to close the place for one year.

A similar action has been started to close the hotel building for a year.

The underprivileged children of Janesville will benefit by $1,300 as a result of the Kiwanis' ministerial show and thirteen days of hard work by nearly a hundred people to present a fine entertainment.

Girl Reserves

Enjoy Trip to Oregon Statue

Thirty-two Girl Reserves and seven adult chaperones made up the party that drove to Oregon, Ill., Thursday, on a pilgrimage to the famous Black Hawk statue. A picnic dinner was enjoyed in the woods, after which appropriate exercises were held near the statue. Miss Besse Ellis told the story of Black Hawk, and six girls read a parent entitled "Gifts of the Indians." Broads.

During the afternoon a visit was paid to the artist's colony established in the vicinity through the efforts of Lerado Taft, the sculptor.

The yellow truck party did not stop in Oregon as did the others, which gave rise to a report that the truck was lost enroute to Janesville. The rest of the party did not catch up with the others until after leaving Berlin, but as those in the truck were properly chaperoned, there was no cause for alarm.

Following are those who made the trip: Ruth Fisher, Beulah Waldman, Charlotte Campbell, Esther Dunmore, Beulah Hanson, Besse Ellis, Linda Schickert, Leone Thompson, Adeline Dersch, Mary Foyt, Ruth Gandy, Charles Churchill, Jessie May, Katharine Wilson, Louise Larson, Mary Imogene Meagher, Alice Wittenberg, Marjorie Venable, Esther Curier, Clement Wright, Lera Tiffany, Thelma Hamilton, Kathryn Cloway, Marjorie Haskins, Gladys Shan, Dorothy Kampflein, Eva Sarsay, Gladys Robins, Ella Lumb, Wilma Hall, chaperones were Nedraene Allen, Paul Lovley, Paul Owen and Frank Sander, the Misses Marion Munson, Ruth Jelley, Isabelle Pember, and Helen Kline.

30 Members Are Secured by Boys

Thirty new members had been secured in the boy's Y. M. C. A. membership campaign and were reported at the meeting and supper Thursday night which about 20 workers attended. Twenty of the members were secured Thursday against only 10 on the previous day.

The girls were especially good in their numbers, and the only criticism which might be made was that there were too few songs and dances by the girls who went through the steps like professionals.

Before the curtain went up, Director Ross Harvey made a little speech of thanks, said Janesville was his second home, and that when he heard that he might not be sent here to put on the show, he wired the Chicago office something hot and perfectly understandable. The result was that he was sent here right away. He left early this morning for Ottawa, Canada, where he puts on another Kiwanis show.

Before the curtain went up, the members of the cast, through Roger Cunningham, presented to Mr. Harvey a set of traveling brushes.

Tractors Fail to Displace Dogs in Snows of Arctic

Copenhagen—Dog teams still hold the leading position as a means of conveyance in the frozen north; a certain type of power tractor has been used to clear the roads of snow, waiting, in the name of Louis Koch, the Danish explorer, who has just returned to Copenhagen after experimenting in northern Greenland with the machine. It is almost impossible to substitute self-propelled machinery for dogs, he says.

The party left Copenhagen in a small motor schooner in July, 1920, and by the fall of last year had built a base 120 miles north of Thule, latitude 78° north. The first difficulty with the tractors was experienced in unloading them from the boat and getting them on inland ice. In 12 inches of snow up a slight incline, but at a very slow speed, the tractors dragged a load consisting of nine barrels of petrol, a barrel of oil, a barrel of kerosene, a barrel of water, etc., it is therefore necessary for the tractor to drag great weights, which consist mainly of its own fuel and oil. While the motor worked very well at thirty degrees below zero, considerable difficulty was experienced at lower temperatures, and finally it was necessary to abandon the use of the tractors entirely and haul up the progress of the expedition and showed signs of wear out quickly.

The Koch expedition was organized as a scientific and mapping expedition, and in this capacity was eminently successful.

Ryan Wins Case in U. S. Court

The case was of great importance. In that it was the first of its kind to be tried in the western district of Wisconsin under the Dyer law. The result of the trial is considered a big victory for the United States district attorney's office, and in that the case was heard without a jury. Mr. Stanley M. Ryan, assistant district attorney conducted the prosecution and he received congratulations from friends after the verdict had been received.

The above paragraph published in a Madison newspaper had reference to the case of Frank G. Gillette, St. Paul, Minn., who was indicted in the United States district court at Madison for transporting stolen cars from Minnesota to Wisconsin.

Mr. Ryan is a Janesville man and he has been successful in his work as assistant to William H. Dougherty, Janesville, United States district attorney.

TAX ON UNEARNED INCOMES ADVOCATED

Chicago—Improvement in agricultural conditions can only be expected "when the present system of taxation is changed, through the shifting of taxes from business to unearned incomes." Edward Nordman, commissioner of markets for Wisconsin, declared in an address today before the convention of the Manufacturers and Merchants Federal Tax League.

BAVARIAN REVOLT IS CRUSHED OUT

General Ludendorff, it seems, is to be the military dictator of the Reich and the republic is to be swept away. Whether he and his fellow conspirators are men of the right mettle to effect the change is not yet known, but the indications given Von Seekt and Hitler in dispatches to the English newspapers during the last few weeks do not suggest that these men possess the necessary qualifications for carrying out such a momentous undertaking.

Depend on Reichswehr.

No word reaching London indicates the attitude of the Reichswehr regarding the Munich coup, but on the loyalty of these troops to the Hitler government, everything, of course, depends. Hitherto there has been nothing to show that any resistance was offered to the Hitlerites in Munich and the indications are that the rebellion passed bloodlessly.

Little except official news is likely to get out of Berlin for many hours in view of the tight censorship established as soon as news of the putsch reached the capital.

Reports reaching London said Berlin was swarming with troops at midnight and that the Reich cabinet was in continuous session.

von Seekt Has Free Hand.

It is assumed here that President Ebert and Chancellor Stresemann will be compelled to accept辞职, but General Von Seekt, who has been appointed commander-in-chief of the national army and invested with full military authority, apparently has been given a free hand in disposing of the Reichswehr forces.

FINANCE RADILY UPSET:

EXCHANGE MAY CLOSE.

London.—The Central news correspondent from Berlin says that the result of the coup will be the dissolution of the financial and business circles in the German capital and that it is expected the stock exchange will close. Only official communications are coming over the wires from Munich.

FIFTH BIRTHDAY OF REPUBLIC IN TURMOIL

(By Associated Press)

Berlin.—The fifth birthday of the German republic finds the forces of reaction in control of the government of Bavaria, with General Ludendorff as commander in chief of the army and Adolf Hitler, who preceded the overthrow of the putsch, as minister of war.

The survivors of the Bavarian ministers, including Premier Von Knecht, are reported under arrest.

The first fragmentary advices from Munich were to the effect that the rebellion was only against the Von Knecht government, but as other reports received the impression grew that the revolt was also aimed at the central government and that the leaders of the coup had proclaimed the overthrow of the Ebert-Stresemann regime.

Take Immediate Steps.

This important warning strength which was addressed to the German people was issued in which the government announced that steps to restore order had been taken and would be carried out "with the utmost vigor" asserted that "an armed band" in Munich has "arrogated to itself the right to institute a government of the Reich," had made Ludendorff commander in chief of the German army and had appointed Hitler as arbiter of the destinies of Germany.

General von Lossow, commander of the Bavarian Reichswehr and named minister of war with Herr Von Knecht, former chief of police of Munich, has been made administrator.

Seven All Relations.

When word of the revolt reached Berlin the central government secured all relations with Bavaria, unapointed General Von Seekt as commander in chief of the national army and announced the withdrawal of all federal support from the rebellious state until constitutional conditions should be resumed.

The government also addressed the following manifesto to the German people:

"At this moment of great tension in the foreign and domestic situation some foolish people are endeavoring to break up the German Reich.

Government Overthrown.

"An armed band has overthrown the government in Munich, arrested Premier Von Knecht and arrogated to itself the right to institute a government of the Reich," it said.

"Instead of helping in the Rhine land and the Ruhr our brethren who are fighting in Germany's cause, such persons are plunging the Reich into a catastrophe, threatening its food supply. They are exposing it to an enemy invasion and they are destroying all chances of economic improvement.

They Write for the Janesville Gazette

Cartoons

E. A. Bushnell.

Bushnell is a cartoonist of national fame. When he takes his pen in hand to draw a caricature or with keen incision get at the foibles of mankind, or where he shines most brilliantly, in honest illustration of every day life, he is always given a hearing. You see these in the Gazette. This is another reason why the Gazette is an unusual newspaper.

Washington

Frederick J. Huskin

Mr. Huskin is a valuable contributor to the Gazette. He occupies a place daily on the editorial page and is the head of the Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau at Washington. Perhaps no institution in the country for the purpose of securing information is better organized than that of the Gazette Washington Information Bureau under the direction of Mr. Huskin. It gives to Gazette readers a ready to hand place to get an answer to almost any question under the sun. This is another reason why the Gazette is an unusual newspaper.

Home

Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson.

What a wonderful audience Mrs. Thompson has among the women and, yes, men also of the Gazette family. Mrs. Thompson has been writing a long time for the Gazette. You will find her "Heart and Home" in every issue. It is the one place where women, girls, men may go to get advice and real heart assistance and feel perfectly at home. It is a valuable Gazette feature.

Abe Martin

Kin Hubbard

Hoosier Philosophy has its greatest exponent in Kin Hubbard who is known to fifty thousand people who read the Gazette every evening as "Abe Martin." In this Abe Martin has created a genuine character so close to the people as to be real. The Gazette has no better writer. Kin Hubbard is a member of the editorial staff of the Indianapolis News. He has been there several years and has made for himself a reputation not confined to any locality. It costs a pretty considerable sum each year to have him as a member of the Gazette contributing force. But that is why the Gazette is an unusual newspaper.

Humor

Roy K. Moulton.

Roy K. Moulton has an international reputation as a column conductor. His "On the Spur of the Moment" printed every day on the editorial page of the Gazette is one of the best in the United States. Moulton shines among the best of the spontaneous humorists of the day.

Heart Poems

Edward Guest

If you will sit down and compose a poem a year you will feel that you have done well. But if you wrote 325 poems a year you might feel something of the need for inspiration. Edward Guest has been writing for the Gazette a long time. He gets into the hearts of more people than any other man or woman in the world. Millions read his poems every night in the year. The Gazette would hardly be complete without this great contributor to the Gazette family reading.

Comics

Ed. Whelan

Among the comics appearing daily in the Gazette, none is more welcome than that of the "Minute Movies." It is more than a mere comic strip. It is an acute disector of the follies and foibles of the movies. Yet it appeals to all the children as well as the grown-ups. Mr. Whelan, like all good cartoonists was born in the country but has his studio in New York. Children and big folks here is Eddie.

Health

Dr. Brady

Dr. William Brady is known to every person in Southern Wisconsin. As a contributor of a Health Talk Column to the Gazette editorial page every day, he has made so many friends that they would be hard to count. Brady inaugurated the newspaper health column. He was the pioneer; others have since imitated the Brady letters. His outstanding feature is good, hard old fashioned common sense. He is one of the valuable contributors to the success of the Janesville Daily Gazette.

The Community Newspaper

The Gazette has no ambition to be a national newspaper. Nor has it a desire to cover the whole state of Wisconsin, but in its own field, where the paper can be delivered within the next 24 hours, it hopes to be indispensable in every home. It aims to be clean—to be possible for all to read it and feel better for the reading. Hence the array of writers who live all over the United States—the best brains and the greatest ability to be had.

In the Matter of News—The Gazette has the full leased wire report of the Associated Press, beginning at seven o'clock in the morning. That is why the readers of the Gazette get the news of today when they open the paper at night. When the Gazette has been delivered the official day in Europe has ended and a move made in Berlin or London affecting the world, is known in Janesville and Southern Wisconsin almost as soon as it is across the water and often hours ahead of Europe—because they are slow over there in making a newspaper. Ninety correspondents in all sections of Southern Wisconsin keep Gazette readers informed of interesting local happenings, making a complete history of affairs each week. Special wire services are also available and are called upon in emergencies.

The Markets—No newspaper in a city of the size of Janesville in Wisconsin and so far as can be ascertained, anywhere else, has so complete a market report of the current day.

The Sports—The Gazette sporting department is unique in sporting pages. It covers, as no other newspaper attempts to cover, news of sporting events in this vicinity—in this great community of Southern Wisconsin. And it has something else which is seldom found in a newspaper sports—ideals. Commercialized sports under the guise of amateur events, have no greater enemy than the Gazette. "Ringers" and hired professionals have no place in the amateur field. This policy of hiring men to play has damned sport, lost for it the deep interest and made it a joke. The Gazette wants sport—believes in more participating sports and to that end devotes its columns to reports of every amateur event anywhere in the wide territory covered by the Gazette distribution.

These are among the reasons why the Gazette is a great community newspaper—looked up to and examined by several hundred other newspaper publishers as an example to follow. But it goes farther with its many community departments.

Farm Department of news of the greatest business in the world—farm and dairy. Each day the news is covered of all farm events and weekly with a page or more of farm material of value to us right here at home. We believe that the imaginary line between rural sections and cities and villages should be wiped out completely and to that end the Gazette is devoted.

Community Service Department—The Gazette, through its community service departments, goes farther than to print a newspaper. It aims to give aid and assistance outside even of the mere making and printing of news. So it has its moving picture outfit at the command of communities; of materials and plans for community organization and community programs. And among the rural school children of Southern Wisconsin it has an alia, elega and dedata that the school boy and girl in the rural school should have every facility for an education in its broadest sense vouchsafed for the city youth. Hence the Gazette Good Times Club with 10,000 members. The Gazette is the only newspaper in the United States attempting so great a program for Community Service and that is another reason why it is known everywhere you hear people discussing newspapers as the Unusual Newspaper.

The Saturday and Sunday Gazette—The remarkable reception given the Saturday and Sunday Gazette since its first issue has been the wonder of the newspaper world. It is the one outstanding success of such an issue. The Gazette Saturday and Sunday edition besides being a newspaper with the regular news departments and all other regular features adds other and popular departments which have delighted Gazette readers. The farm department is enlarged and made more interesting, the Good Times Club is appealing, the Radio programs are popular, the serial story is one of the best to be found and bought, the financial page is the only one to be had outside the metropolitan papers, the sports are enlarged and cover a wider range and always there are several outstanding features pleasing and informing. It is another reason why the Janesville Daily Gazette is YOUR PAPER.

DAVID LAWRENCE

LAWRENCE

Letters From the Capital

When David Lawrence came to Janesville recently and met a number of Janesville business and professional people, he was struck with the fact that they were all acquainted with him. He had been introduced through the Gazette columns. Today David Lawrence is the outstanding analyst of Washington events and governmental topics. Widely traveled, widely experienced, he has come to be the exponent and analyzer of the news as it arises from day to day in governmental departments in Washington. He writes for the Gazette a daily dispatch. It is a great outstanding feature and the Gazette is pleased to have him as one of its contributors.

An Incomparable Service From Washington

The Gazette Policy

What It Stands For On the Editorial Page

The Gazette has a policy. Every newspaper to succeed and fill the specifications as a real newspaper must have a clear and well defined editorial policy.

It must have ideals able to be translated into the practical. It must be the voice of the people—the open forum also for the expression of opinion by any and all. The Gazette columns are open to its readers or those who do not read it for such discussion within the limitations of decency and law and space.

The Gazette hopes it may never be said of it that it gave support to any cause not based on justice, right and righteousness. And by the same token that it ever fails to expose and to combat every wrong and entrenched evil. To be helpful in all good causes, and to all movements for advancement and constructive worth, is the policy of the Gazette.

The Gazette is utterly opposed to class distinctions and divisions whether political or otherwise.

The Gazette believes in the Constitution of the United States, the integrity of the republic and intensely jealous of any movement or propaganda which would take the United States out of the place given it by the Fathers of the Nation.

The Gazette is utterly opposed to any movement which arraigns one religion against another in violation of the Bill of Rights in the Constitution and every principle of faith which impelled persecuted peoples to come to America seeking asylum from state controlled religions.

The Gazette believes in a state government founded on administrative economy and devoid of that demagogery which says one thing and practices another.

The Gazette believes in settling economic difficulties without appeal to special legislative acts which are never curatives and often only instigate additional complications and make matters worse.

The Gazette believes in that law enforcement which does not have one rule for today and another for tomorrow.

The Gazette believes in Southern Wisconsin as a favored spot in this world, and capable of a development along every line which will make it the outstanding part of the whole nation.

And in international affairs The Gazette believes the first great duty the republic owes is to make this nation the resultant of ideals of the founders first of all before it goes forth as an arbiter of the destinies of alien peoples.

That is the editorial policy of the Gazette and to that it is committed.

The Complete Newspaper

The Janesville Daily Gazette aims to present each day a complete newspaper. It wants to be welcomed as soon as it lands on the front door step of the homes of Southern Wisconsin.

You see the galaxy of contributors whose pictures appear above. But they are only a few who write for the Gazette.

There is McManus, who draws the comic "Bringing Up Father," and everywhere one goes Jiggs and Maggie are as real as though they lived in the next block.

There is Edna Kent Forbes who has scores of friends among women with her "Beauty Chats." You might be surprised at the number of letters addressed to Miss Forbes each week.

And we do not overlook the baby. Mrs. Myrtle Meyer Eldred each day talks about "Your Baby and Mine," with common sense suggestions on raising a baby healthfully and laying foundation for strong womanhood and manhood in the child.

Cleverest of all in making a few lines tell a complete story is Fontaine Fox with his Toonerville Trolley, Tomboy Taylor, Mickey (himself) Maguire and Aunt Eppa. You know all these folks.

From time to time the Gazette with its connections and its standing in the newspaper world is able to call upon the very best writers in the nation for special features and articles on topics of vital importance. Only a few days ago was completed a series of copyrighted articles on railroads by Senator Cummins of Iowa. Other famous contributors will be read in the Gazette columns during the coming winter season.

Great Stories by the Best Fiction Writers

The Gazette has always had a reputation for the best in serial stories and the finest in fiction.

In the last three years new connections with the great publishing houses have been made and there is available at all times for the Gazette a choice of the most attractive stories. You know about some of these. There is Mary Marie, The Totem of Black Hawk, the serials by Marion Rubincam and a host of others. They have all been books that sell for $1.50 and $1.95 a copy. Each year the value of the serials if purchased in book form would be much more than the price of the Gazette to its subscribers.

The next great serial to appear will be

"The Head of the House of Coombe"

It is a clean, dramatic, delightful story by one of the greatest authors. From the day she wrote "Little Lord Fauntleroy" to this, Frances Hodgson Burnett has been one of America's leading novelists.

RETAIN HOPE FOR PREPARATION MEET

Poincare Given Hughes View point in Detail on Conference.

Washington—Where there's a conversation, there's a hand. That's the status of the negotiations between the United States and France as to the conference of experts which shall make recommendations on the problem of German reparations. Premier Poincare has been given the view-point of Secretary Hughes in detail, and it remains to be seen whether the French premier will find in Mr. Hughes' explanation the guarantees that he wants.

What the French government has asked for is a specific guarantee that the conference of experts will not ask France to reduce the amount of the German debt by accepting the so-called "A" and "P" bonds which amount to about six and a half billion dollars. The question of Germany's present capacity to pay, which has been the technical stumbling block involves something of far greater importance to the French than appears on the surface.

Germany capacity to pay. The experts themselves, for instance, are not to represent the United States government and the extent of its debt and the far less suggestion as to the kind of mechanism that might be helpful in conference. France's debt to America and questions of government financing Germany have been taken over by the government of the United States which has simply offered to act as intermediaries for American business and financing the conference. In the notation of a new financial plan.

Poincare has asked many questions in the hope of getting some governmental assurance from Washington that would enable him to say to useful things can be done by the conference, and he would rather have the United States withdraw—if the party breaks down—than have France refuse.

Under these circumstances the toing and froing between London and Paris is proceeding with an idea of working out a compromise with a knowledge that full publicity probably will be given to the negotiations when once they do break down so that the French and American governments will be judged accordingly.

Pressure of Business

President Coolidge and Secretary Hughes have felt the pressure from American business interests for the extension of a helpful hand to Europe. They knew they must justify American public opinion any withdrawal or recession from the position adopted at the outset. Premier Poincare on his part must prove to French opinion that it will not make a reduction of German debt. Although the United States insists that the meeting of experts is to be an economic and financial survey of German capacity to pay and that the final acceptance or rejection of its findings rests always with each government concerned, the French, ever in the position of being the blocking party, will be given world wide publicity, and if it is to put the French in the position of blocking world peace, they want to checkmate such a step in advance by knowing definitely what is or is not to be investigated.

French capacity to pay. There is some lack of confidence on the part of the French after they give time and thought for several weeks or months to the conference of experts the United States government will do anything in the end when the report comes. Having in mind how the United States first signed the Versailles treaty and didn't ratify it, then signed but didn't ratify the three point plan of millions of dollars in unprovoked aggression by Germany, the French are doubtful of what good would come of the conference of experts if the United States government maintains an attitude of aloofness.

CASHIER ROUTS 3 BOLD, BAD ROBBERS

Pittsburgh—C. P. Marshall, cashier of the Farmers and Miners State bank of Crestline, rebelled when three robbers, who had scooped up between $2,000 and $3,000, held up and forced him into the vault. He grabbed a revolver and fired. The bandits became confused, dropped the satchel into which they had put the money and ran. Entering a motor car, they sped away.
